I Can Never Forget.

OWENSBORO, KY., April 19, 1884.

Editor Herald:
As many of my friends in Ohio county, are readers of your excellent paper, and as it is my home county, whose name and people I love, I feel that it is proper and right for me to say through the columns of your paper that the slanders that were heaped and relished against me during the Cerauto struggle have been cleared up, and the little fellows who took part in it, have proven themselves to be equally as worthy and fit to wear the pearly garments of truth, as a hog is to wear satin pants. As to Cerauto, who was the throne, he came forth politically like a stink flower that sprung up in the early morning, and at noon was cut down. He has withered, and there is no more of his official or political fragrance to be wafted on the gentle air to disturb the olfactory nerves, which wrinkled the noses of a decent people.

I cannot better explain my feelings than in the following verses:
I've not yet named some who were with the throng,
At perhaps now, may never do so;
But they held on to the wrong, like a dog to a bone,
All for that little salary you know.

These little-souled fellows, I can never forget,
Yet may God enable me to forgive;
But the wrong they did me is in my blood yet,
And will there make so long as I live.

The report of that Agent should have never gone out,
Which was intended my good name to slander;
And my life blood may yet, freely run out,
To avenge the souls of my wife and my daughter.

Could all of the blood in Cerauto's veins
And that of his henchmen too, be drained dry,
It would not atone for a sob or a pain,
Nor one tear that fell from their eyes.

Yes, how often when I am all alone,
Do their souls seem to come to my ear;
And with cries, my blood seems to foam,
As their anger I can yet plainly hear.

Yet, I am told that I should not allow
My mind on these great wrongs to dwell;
But then kind friends, will you just tell me
How I can then, from my memory expel?

I ask thee oh! God, from me far to remove,
These feelings of bitterness and death;
And may I be able all such to overcome,
Which return yet, with such heated breath.

I. H. AXTON.

Beda Notes.

April 19, 1884.

Editor Herald:
Very little sickness in our vicinity.

Farmers are busy planting corn and preparing for a crop. There is a great complaint about tobacco plants.

Mr. Origiun Newcomb has moved to his new home.

A very interesting Sabbath school at our church.

Bro. Smith preached at our church last Sabbath.

The school here, under the management of Mrs. Woodward, is very promising. She has 27 scholars; the best summer school that has ever been in the district.

Herman Bennett paid a visit to his parents yesterday.

No sickness, no news more than Madam Rumor says we will have a wedding soon.

Wishing the HERALD success and happiness to its Editors.

Seven Wise Men.

The N. Y. Morning Journal, says that Mrs. F. G. Kellogg, 59 E. 86th St., was partially paralyzed, and lay for seven days in convulsions. Physicians were engaged and discharged until seven had failed to help or cure her. She was unable to leave her bed, and was as helpless as a child. After using all sorts of salves, ointments, lotions and plasters, her case was given up as hopeless. She was induced to try St. Jacobs Oil as a last chance. She began to improve from the time the first application was made, and by its continued use, she has completely recovered.

Editor Herald:
Mrs. Jane Owen has been quite ill for the past week.

Mr. Philip Brooks has deserted bachelorhood and united in marriage with Miss Maggie Wright, of Rockvale, Ky. I wish them a healthy and happy reunion along the grassy banks of time.

Mr. J. H. Morrison paid a flying visit to Elizabethtown a few days since, to see Elizabeth ? ? ? town.

Mr. James McFerris, of this place, happened to a painful accident one day last week. In clearing away a tree, a limb rebounded and struck him in the mouth knocking two of his teeth down his throat, yet, he says it did not hurt.

Sabbath schools were organized at the C. P. church, and at the Baptist church also, on last Sabbath; one to meet in the morning and the other in the evening.

Farmers are progressing rapidly with their work since the pretty Spring weather began.

Mr. C. E. Haynes and R. A. Thorpe have cabbage plants large enough to set, hurried on by being canvassed.

Miss M. A. Chambers, an estimable lady from the State of Illinois, is teaching the Spring school at this place. Her school is very interesting, bespeaking for her, the qualifications of a good teacher.

Mr. James L. Stinnett, of Whitesville, paid us a visit on yesterday.

Mr. A. C. Ellis, Democrat candidate for Sheriff, has been shaking hands with the voters in these parts this week.

Consumption Cured.

An old physician, retired from practice, having had palsy in his hands by an East India mission the formula of a simple vegetable remedy for the speedy and permanent cure of consumption, bronchitis, catarrh, asthma and all throat and lung affections, also a positive and radical cure for nervous debility and all nervous complaints, after having tested its wonderful curative powers in thousands of cases, has felt it his duty to make it known to his suffering fellow-men. Actuated by this motive and a desire to relieve human suffering, I will send free of charge, to all who desire it, this recipe, in German, French or English, with full directions for preparing and using. Illinois News.

CORDEA, April 21, 1884.

Editor Herald:
As the political mill has begun to grind in this State as well as ours, I will try to give you some of the ins and outs. The Republicans of this county have met in a solemn convocation, and have resolved, as is usual on such occasions. Having met in the city of Anna in this county, in mass convention, and having gone through the usual preliminaries of setting down on some of the Bosses that came all parties, they then sent delegates to the Legislative Convention and the Congressional Convention, both of which will be held in Carbonado, Jackson county.

Their choice for Governor was Dick Oglesby, who seems to have the governorship in fee simple.

They instructed the vote of this county to be cast for John R. Thomas for Congress who is the present incumbent, and who was present and being called for responded and in which he paid a high tribute to the "Truly Loyal" and asserted that the next Republican candidate for President would be elected by a larger majority than ever before. But I will say to you from what I can hear, the Hon. John R. Thomas will, if nominated which he will I suppose, as he has no opposition, have to hustle around lively to beat the Democratic nominee, who ever he may be, as he can not unite the least with him.

Patents Granted.

The following patents were granted to citizens of Ky., week ending April 15th, 1884, reported expressly for this paper by Jos. H. Hunter, Solicitor of American and Foreign Patents, 934 F Street, Washington, D. C.:

Patent A. Tarbox, Louisville, spring motor; Jesse M. and William H. Currie, Louisville, churn; George A. Gray Jr., Covington, metal planing machine; Frederick Stitzel, Louisville, rotary steam engine; Frederick Stitzel, Louisville, rotary water meter.

A TRAGIC EVENT.

A Father's Despair and Self-Inflicted Death. His Son's Final Rescue. Too Late to Save His Parent.

The graphic occurrence that is described below is one of the most remarkable episodes in the domestic history of America. It is absolute truth which can be readily verified.

The inhabitants of the pleasant town of Cortland, N. Y., were shocked one morning by the announcement that Mr. Clinton Rindge, one of their most prominent citizens, had committed suicide. The news spread rapidly and aroused the entire neighborhood where Mr. Rindge was so well and favorably known. At first it seemed impossible that any one so quiet and so domestic could do so rash a deed, and the inquiry was heard on every side as to the cause. The facts as developed on investigation proved to be as follows:

Mr. Rindge was domestic in his tastes and took the greatest enjoyment in the society of his children and pride in their development. And indeed he had good reason to be proud for they gave promise of long lives of success and usefulness. But an evil day came. His youngest son, William, began to show signs of an early decay. He felt unusually tired each day, and would sometimes sleep the entire afternoon if permitted to do so. His head pained him, not acutely, but with a dull, heavy feeling. There was a sinking sensation at the pit of his stomach. He lost all relish for food and much of his interest for things about him. He tried manfully to overcome these feelings, but they seemed stronger than his will. He began to lose flesh rapidly. The father became alarmed and consulted physicians as to the cause of his son's illness, but they were unable to explain. Finally severe sores broke out on his arms and he was taken to Buffalo where a painful operation was performed resulting in the loss of much blood but affording little relief. The young man returned home and a council of physicians was called. After an exhaustive examination they declared there was no hope of final recovery and that he must die within a few days. To describe the agony which this announcement caused the father would be to grasp it full meaning at first; then finally seemed to comprehend it, but the load was too great. In an agony of frenzy he seized a knife and took his own life, preferring death rather than to survive his idolized son. At that time William Rindge was too weak to know what was transpiring. His face had turned black, his breath ceased entirely at times, and his friends waited for his death, believing that the fiend Bright's disease of the kidneys, from which he was suffering, could not be removed. In this supreme moment William's sister came forward and declared she would make a final attempt to save her brother. The doctors interposed, assuring her it was useless and that she would only hasten the end by the means she proposed to employ. But she was firm, and putting all luck, approached her brother's side and administered a remedy which she fortunately had on hand. Within an hour he seemed more easy, and before the day was over he showed signs of decided improvement. These favorable signs continued, and to-day William B. Rindge is well, having been virtually raised from the dead through the marvelous power of Warner's Safe Cure, as can be readily verified by any citizen of Cortland.

Any one who reflects upon the facts above described must have a feeling of sadness. The father, dead by his own hand, supposing his son's recovery to be impossible; the son restored to health to mourn the loss of his father and the agonized relatives with a memory of sadness to forever darken their lives. Had Clinton Rindge known that his son could recover he would to-day be alive and happy, but the facts which turned his brain and caused him to commit suicide were such as any one would accept as true.

However sad this case may be, the truth remains that thousands of people are at this moment in as great actual peril as William Rindge and in a great danger of causing injury if not death to their families. Liver and kidney diseases are become the most common and most dangerous of any or all modern complaints. They are the most deceptive in their beginnings and horrible in their final stages. They are far more dangerous than Consumption, and can rarely be detected even by skillful physicians unless a microscopic analysis be resorted to, and few doctors understand how to do this. Their slightest approach, or possibility of approach should strike terror to the one who is threatened as well as to all his or her friends. These diseases have no distinct symptoms, but come in the form of lassitude, loss of appetite, aching muscles and joints, dull headaches, pains in the back, stomach and chest, sour stomach, recurring signs of cold, irregular pulsations of the heart, and frequent dizziness. If neglected, these symptoms are certain to run into chronic kidney and liver or Bright's disease, from which there is sure to be a great amount of agony and only one means of escape, which is by the use of Warner's Safe Cure. The importance of taking this great remedy upon the slightest appearance of any of the above symptoms cannot be too strongly impressed upon the minds of all readers who desire to escape death and pain and prolong life with all its pleasures and blessings.

Shrove Splinters.

April 19th, 1884.

News very scarce, save bad news. Measles everywhere. In a circuit of a few miles, extending from Falls of Rough to Fordsville, and from Rockvale to Barrett's Ferry, there have been I suppose, probably one hundred and fifty cases. Some cases complicated with pneumonia. Other kinds of sickness prevailing to some extent. I have just learned that Mr. John Meador, of Breckenridge county, is dangerously ill; I do not know from what disease. His brother, Dr. J. W. Meador, was called to him on yesterday, in consultation with the attending physician, Dr. Dempster. I learned that Dr. Meador was aiming to locate in Hartford by the 15th inst., but has more practice than he can do, so he is not likely to get away for some time yet. We hope that sickness will not continue, yet we would like for the doctor to stay with us.

Farmers are busy turning over the soil; some are beginning to plant corn. Mrs. Roby has returned from Shelby county, to her old home near Pottsville, and is, we are sorry to say, in very bad health.

What has become of "Arthusia"? I miss her interesting letters.

More anon. MATTIE.

The Copy Right Bill.

It is a matter of surprise to see so many of the "Weeklies" large and small pursue the copy right bill now before Congress, with so much venom. Its author comes in for no untended measure of the same commodity. We fail to see the justice of the pursuit, or the force of the argument against the "bill." As to the author, it is to be regretted that Mr. Watson should be made the object of so much unmerited abuse.

It is no departure to regard "news" as actual property. It bears that relation to commerce now in England. Abstractly considered, no good reason can be assigned why when in individual, or a company invests time, labor and money in the gathering and preparation of news for publication, it is not property in which there is as complete a vested right as if the same funds were invested in cotton, corn or tobacco. From our stand-point then, we cannot indorse the prosecution of any one for defending his own, or for asking protection for that in which he has an actual, or an equitable interest.

We can well imagine why some of the "dallies" regard the bill and its author with disfavour, and miss no favorable opportunity to discharge their spleen at one or both. Maintaining at best, a precarious existence, always impetuous, aimless, unless it is to offer opposition to any proposition of a general or a progressive nature. Making unjust war on men and measures, thus creating spasmodic demands for sheets otherwise utterly worthless.

But for the practice, so long continued at, of prating upon the property of others, many of the papers now making great pretensions would be less valuable to the general public than an ordinary county paper. The passage of the bill will either force them out of existence, or, as a matter of life and death, compel them to pay for the use of property belonging to others, and in that regard, at least, lead honest lives in future. Either condition being a "consummation devoutly to be wished."

JUSTICE.

Beecher on Tariff.

We clip the following from a communication from the Rev. Henry Ward Beecher to the Chicago Tribune:

The Republican party inaugurated a policy of high tariff. The necessities of a period of gigantic war is the only palliation of such a policy. But, when protection of American industry was grafted upon the tariff, no excuse could be found for the blunder. It is an insult to American enterprise to assume that it needs protection. American industry is no decrepit thing, needing crutches and nurses. Protection puts the Government into the ridiculous attitude of undertaking to supervise all the various and intricate affairs of manufacture and commerce. It is the last vestige of that old system of paternal government which seeks to arrange men's religious beliefs, to determine their social relations, to prescribe their dress, and to dictate to them what a free people are a thousand times better able to do for themselves. The aim and drift of protection is foolish and impertinent, but the machinery by which it seeks to secure this end is even worse than the cause which it serves. Corrupt custom-houses in their nature are academies of injustice and dishonesty—abhorred of God, as they ought to be of men.

An Ugly Affair.

The safe in F. T. Gunther & Co's store was robbed Wednesday night of $160, in a very peculiar manner. An entrance to the store was effected through a grating over the cellar in the rear of the house. The combination was properly worked on the safe, the money taken from a drawer and the safe locked again, all going to show that the party who committed the robbery was familiar with the combination. There are some very ugly rumors afloat concerning the robbery, which may or may not be cleared up in a few days.—Messenger.
